The New Haven Railroad and the New York Port Directors are in agreement about the proposed extension of the lease of Commonwealth Dock. The contract has been drawn up. All that lacks is the official sanction of the Legislature.

There are nine members of the Executive Council, besides Governor Foss. Eight are elected by districts. The ninth is nominated by the Legislature.

THE AMERICAN Robert L. Taylor, who has been in the city for some time, is in touch with four of these nine members, Lieutenant Governor Lane and Councilors Cushing, Gossling and Schuster.

Connolly Cushing came out with the characteristic frankness in favor of the

There may be Boston leaders in the business world big enough and powerful enough to find out where Luce and Schuster stand on the biggest proposition that has come before this community in perhaps a quarter of a century. BACKACHE "GETS ON THE NERVES"

"Every Picture Tells a Story"
Many who suffer from backache and weak kidneys are unnaturally irritable, fretful and nervous. Not only does constant headache "get on the nerves", but bad kidneys fail to eliminate all the uric acid from the system, and uric acid irritates the nerves, keeping you "on edge" and causing rheumatic, neuralgic pains. Doan

U. S. MARINES READY FOR CUBA

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—American marines will be landed in Cuba within the next twenty-two hours under conditions as the latest military orders.

This information was obtained at the state department today following the receipt of private dispatches from Minister de la Haya to the chief secretary of state.

The present situation in and around the Cuban capital is considered to be far more serious than it was last winter, when 2,000 marines were landed to restore order and half a dozen battleships lay off the coast, aiming the rebels with their 12-inch guns.

With Havana under martial law, both liberals and conservatives made hostile demonstrations. Five are known to be dead as a result of fighting yesterday.

The preparation of the army contingent in Havana, and the probability that the rebels will do as much and attempt to sweep the unprotected wharves before them, has led to the sending of more troops to Washington.

Washington officials report from Havana indicate that there are at least 20,000 troops marching through the capital and that they are waiting only the march of troops or money to leave for the rebels.

At the first sign of such an outbreak,

DEPUTY SHERIFF WHELTON ENJOINED IN STOCK DISPUTE

Justice Martin of the Suffolk superior court has issued an injunction against Deputy Sheriff Daniel A. Whelton of the sheriff's office, enjoining him from interfering with the Adams Express Company, which is to contain 250 shares of stock in that company.

When Edward C. Bates of Pittsfield, Pa., was sued by the Hamilton Telephone Manufacturing Company, last August, the municipal court awarded the telephone company $750.00, and found judgment against the Adams Express Company, which was named as trustee for Bates.

The Adams Express Company, on Whelton's demand, brought the writ of certiorari to the state court, the writ restraining the stock in the express company. He advertised the sale of the stock, containing the stock. The telephone company says that he has no authority to do so and asked for the injunction, which was granted.

The state department is prepared to send marines to Cuba and land marines and soldiers at Havana. The battleships have been at Havana, but they will be the first ship to be moved from Cuba, while the United States will proceed into service to transport troops from Nicaragua to Guatemala.

The Cuban elections take place next Friday, and it is feared the rebels will break out. It is feared the rebels will break out. It is feared the rebels will break out.

POLITICAL NEWS Vote for Wilson, Foss, Walsh and Other Democratic Candidates

Old Fossil Hall was crowded with an enthusiastic throng of Democrats today who listened attentively to address by Governor Emmet O'Neill of Alabama, Mayor Fitzgerald and David I. Walsh, Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor of Massachusetts.

All of the speakers predicted the election of Governor Wilson, the Democratic candidate for President.

"The Democratic party," declared Governor O'Neill, "propose to open wide the doors of opportunity to dislodge monopolies from its entrenched position by giving free play to the forces of competition and by forcing subsequent of law. The quest for the overthrow of organized labor and trade unions has been the monopolistic program of the country."

Chance of Government.

"The American voter has a choice of a government free to serve all the people at all times as proposed by the Democratic program at the time, or a socialist autocracy as proposed by the third term wing of the Republican party or a centralized despotism as proposed by the stand-pat wing of the Republican party."

David I. Walsh declared:

"The speech called forth many outbursts of applause."

"Governor Wilson," he said, "will be elected because he is not recognized to be a progressive and who is not advancing progressive policies."

"The people are demanding that the government be no longer used by any particular class for its special advantage; they want the tariff schedule reduced; they want corporations to be better regulated and to be kept out of business; they want the government to keep out of the business of being led by any one's selfishness; or to any one's advantage over any one else."

To League with Interests.

"Under the Republican administration of Theodore Roosevelt and President Taft, there has grown up a strong partnership between the government and big business and privileges. Nothing has been done to remove the tariff schedule in the country; the beneficiaries of our tariff schedule have been the campaign contributions to the Republican Party."

"The people react in this campaign that if they want to eliminate the partnership between the government and the special interests they will elect a Democratic President and a Democratic Congress."

Congressman Peter spoke particularly against the present Congress, an unscrupulous and corrupt body of the Republic has party with the thorough way in which the Democratic party have given every opportunity to redeem in full its progressive platform.

Mr. Peter said that the first step taken by the Democratic House had been to put an end to "cronism."

Mr. Peter referred to the eight-hour bill which the Democrats in Congress had brought about. This bill, he said, was a recognition that the Federal government should be the better condition of our working classes, and the enactment was a recognition that the Democratic members of the House in taking pride in their position and activity which he made it possible.

Wilson and Prosperity.

President Joseph H. O'Neill of the Federal Trust Company predicted:

Chairman O'Neill stated that no fear of business or industrial loss need be felt in the election to some of Woodrow Wilson.

"The Republicans are crying 'selfishness,'" said Mr. O'Neill, "but they are not selfish; they are only afraid of the loss of their own selfishness."

Mayor Scores Lodge.

After scoring Senate Lodge of being surrounded by sinister influences and de-chaining the Senator to compare records, for work done in behalf of Boston, Mayor Fitzgerald said in closing his address:

"Small Massachusetts needs a laughing stock among common progressives all over the United States."

"The speaker called forth many outbursts of applause."

The Great Grandson of Commodore Richard Boyman, Who Led the British Ships in the Evacuation of Boston, Is in Town

He Has Had Some Interesting Experiences — Experiences Which Have Led Him to Many Interesting and Philosophical Conclusions.

An Englishman of distinguished family — to be exact, the great grandson of Commodore Richard Boyman, who piloted the British warships out of Boston Harbor in the evacuation of Boston in 1776 — has temporarily set his foot in town.

He has been in town for some time and he says he has found it very interesting.

He has plans for the development of the city which every property owner, every merchant, railroad man and citizen will find worth reading.

The story appears in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

The College Hero, Strange to Say, Really Loves Girls.

Every day we read something in the papers about "The College Hero." He might be a baseball player or a football player or a "crack" or most any kind of college hero. In this particular case the college hero is a the Boston of today nearly as interesting as did its distinguished progenitor. His experiences in the city of Boston are interesting and philosophical conclusions.

Among them he has found that commercial Boston has little use for a man over forty-five. Did you ever happen to wonder what would become of YOU if you are over forty-five, you found yourself without a job?

This Englishman, a man of talent and education, expert in his lines of work, has investigated in the school of hard experience what happens to a man of forty-five or over who wants to get on.

He has tried many lines here, he has met many kinds of Boston men.

He is doing very well at present, but the story of his experiences is deeply absorbing.

If you are over forty-five and have looked about the usual and inevitable "rainy day," you'll find his story one that will set you thinking.

It's not a despondent thing, Boston style, but it's a story of WORTH READING. It will appear exclusively tomorrow in the Sunday AMERICAN.

Who'll It Be, Taft, Roosevelt or Wilson?

President-elect, or President or Governor. We almost said "Coming President," but that is something that needs corroborating by better statistics than a "hunch."

How New England Women May Avoid Impure Foods.

Dr. Mary Richardson, secretary of the State Board of Health, has suggested in the Sunday AMERICAN'S PURE FOOD PAGE with an interview every woman will find instructive and interesting.

It tells HOW TO AVOID IMPURE FOODS. He exposes some of the subterfuges and deceptions practiced by manufacturers and dealers, makes suggestions as to what to buy and what not to buy, and discloses at length the BEST FOOD to provide for your family.

These Kiddies' Pictures Give an Insight Into Value of Fresh Air.

Not ALL of Boston's children attend school in SCHOOLS. Some of them have changed since you and I went to school, and now days one is just as likely to attend school out of doors as in.

The Sunday AMERICAN prints some pictures tomorrow of Boston school children attending one of the outdoor schools.

They are cute things, and from looking at them you gain an intimate knowledge and insight into this outdoor school proposition which you probably never had before.

Some New Englanders Who Zira Will Want to Accept $10,000.

There's a page of pictures in Sunday's AMERICAN of some of the contestants in the AMERICAN'S GREAT 10,000 CONTEST.

If you are in the race or know anyone who is you'll be interested to look at this page of cheerful faces.

Marye one of them will be the lucky winner who has $10,000.

And These Are Not All the Interesting Things in Sunday's American.

There are two pages of LORD ROSSMITH'S SECRETS and the EARLY OF BRITAIN and ALTY which make intensely entertaining reading.

There is a discussion as to whether ANNETTE KELLERMAN SHOULD AMUSE THE STAGE IN SWIMMING CLOTHES.

There is a page story with pictures concerning SMITH COLLEGE GIRLS and how they are paying their own way through college.

And—for the rest, let us refer you to the paper itself. It will be on sale most everywhere as usual tomorrow, and you can get it by ORDERING YOUR SUNDAY AMERICAN TODAY.

Maybe you have no home of your own. Then, why not get one?

Why not determine that you will win that capital sum of $10,000 cash in the AMERICAN $40,000 Contest? Then you will have a home—a home for life and for your children after you.

Working for the Boss

WAGES

By THOMAS TAPPER

WAGES are the flowers you pick in the garden of industry. You see, it's this way: If you want a garden, you dig and dig; then you turn the soil with your hands; you add fertilizer and care, a little loan and a good deal of sacrifice, and then you drop the seeds in. But before you drop the seeds, you sort of plan the whole thing. You see it in the mind as you hope it is going to be. The planter here, the artist over there, and so on.

Then you put weeds for a while, and water the garden. Then you transplant the seedlings, and put more weeds and do lots more watering.

And so on.

If you keep at it every day until a bush in a regular thing—why then you get a garden with some flowers.

II.

Now, about the wages. All that preliminary garden work, in the case of wages, nothing ready for the boss; learning things, doing things, working up things.

Finally, being satisfied with something to do, by somebody else, for a little of his money.

By and by you learn to think the wages are not enough. I can work more. The boss isn't treating me right. And so on.

Well, now, let's wander into the garden.

How are we going to get a lot more flowers than we have?

By investing in a lot more bush.

A job worth while, a garden that can be entered occasionally. If there seems to be a few relatives waiting around the job, the boss, and you are dissatisfied, study the bright of the wage. It may be possible to get over it.

III.

A man at work has every right in the world to more pay—if there is more in him than the job is calling out.

People keep on saying that wages have not increased with the cost of living. There's Johnny Mason, been at work for twenty years, at probably the same salary. Now, he has a family of four to support, and the cost of everything is increasing.

I can see that. Come increase and families increase—and wages do not increase as fast. But what I am most interested in is this:

Has Johnny Mason been increasing in his value as a worker increasing?

through a steady push on his part to make a better and more efficient man of himself.

I still have the notion that there are plenty of chances, and even-better ones for Johnny Mason in the world who will never let up on increasing his working capacity.

But I don't see much in the way of better times for the Johnny Masons who are as useful and efficient twenty years ago as now, and no more now than twenty years ago.

In this problem of Working for the Boss, there is one point we are forever forgetting.

A man is his own boss, wherever he works.

If there is more in him than there is in the job, he must take the most truth forward as soon as he has the fact.

For this purpose a little cash in hand to pay the expenses of the move is indispensable. Here is the first and highest purpose of Thrift and Saving.

Get something ahead so as to command your own freedom when the move must be made.

A boss is apt to have a fair knowledge of relative value. If he is a decent kind of boss, he will pay you for what you are worth.

He is apt to figure it out like this: So much capacity, so much pay.

If the boss is a little slow to raise the pay, should a man take revenge on him by not raising his own capacity?

If a boss has skill for sale, he must keep on improving it on account of the competition.

When the habit of improving skill is fast and reliable, he will then find a market where his goods are in demand.

That market will be right here, in the case of an employer.

He Tipped Again

He was very affable and free with his opinion, was this young man, but that was about all he was free with. To the man who had carried his hat, he had tipped the hat to the contrary.

Notwithstanding, the former look on the man's face, he still continued to chat in an easy manner.

"I shall never forget," he continued, "the splendor of the scenery when I was in the city."

He was an education to see the man, trying the little blue shirt with gold—

He interrupted the man who had tipped the hat. "Then," he said, "it was better than me, weren't they?"

Beauty Woman's Greatest Gift, Says Miss Sally Fisher

MISS SALLY FISHER, STAR OF "THE WOMAN HATERS"

By Margaret Hubbard Ayer

"How can you expect me to give advice on beauty and beauty?"

When I am six feet tall, and have a wonderful and perfectly developed body, I wonder that anybody should ask me for advice on beauty and beauty."

Miss Sally Fisher, dressed in the style of her profession, was sitting in a chair, looking at the camera.

She was the star of the play "The Woman Haters" at the Theatre.

ally was subdued by a row of medicine bottles, but, nevertheless, even pain and suffering cannot dampen the interview of interest.

"I was a very plain child," said Miss Fisher, with a remnant look of pain.

"I have always longed for beauty more than for anything else in the world."

"I think that it is the greatest gift that anyone can have, and it is absolutely indispensable for a woman to get it."

"Beauty is essential to success and happiness in every walk of life."

"It has taken me ten years to do this, Walter, but I told you I'd do it, didn't I?"

He took her hand and kissed it, and then he said: "I think that's just what you need."

Babes From the Woods

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

There are three letters written by the girls who imagine they are in love:

"I am keeping company with a young man of my age, which is seventeen. He calls on me every night, but he does not show any love to me. What can I do to make him show his love?"

"I am sixteen, and in love with a girl one year my junior. I think she doesn't pay the attention she ought to. I love her, but she never tells me she loves me. I would like to know a plan by which I could find out if she reciprocates my love for her."

"It is my aim for a boy and girl of sixteen to keep steady company. Some people say that at the age of sixteen children should never think of the opposite sex."

Boy and girl love, called affairs by those who have survived its attacks without lasting ones, may develop into something fine, but every change in the world is against it.

In Love with Love

In the first place, children of that age don't know their own minds. They are in love with love, and think they are in love with the boy or girl who at that moment please them best. In six weeks, the love is gone, and the girl is left with a broken heart.

It is a mistake to think that the love of a young man is a thing that is attached to some other person. Indeed, given opportunity and environment, the love of a young man is a thing that is attached to the love of a young woman.

This love is serious while it lasts. It takes time, is a waste of emotion, and is fostered and encouraged when one's judgment is hazy and immature. There is the danger here.

Youth always swings too far both ways. One is unconsciously happy or despondently depressed. Love never an offspring of reason, but rather of the immature passion which then under its rays is under sixteen.

Time that should be spent in making a valuable storehouse of the brain is devoted to making that valuable part of the anatomy a lumber room filled with useless and useless material.

Here's the Answer

When one is sixteen, the brain is strong and active and impressionable, and because of this, the brain is more likely to be misled by the press as a byproduct of the brain.

French postcards will in future be provided officially with stamp-matching appliances, and invention which is killed by the press as a byproduct of the brain.

In one year Canada reported 50,000,000 bushels of wheat.

Capital punishment was abolished in Italy in 1886.

Do You Know That—

The Rev. R. F. Tyron, known as the carpenter-painter, is superintending the erection of a new Memorial Methodist Church at New York, and will do much of the carpenter work himself. He is a builder before he became a minister.

"You're young! Your whole life will be spent in jail!"

"I don't care! I'll spend my whole life in jail!"

Sometimes You Have to Go Out and Meet Opportunity

Boston Gets a Hamburg-American Service to the Continent of Europe, the First Real Achievement in the Greater Development of the Port, Because Four Representative Bostonians Were Willing to Make a Sacrifice for Their City. Let Their Great Success Be a Lesson to All the Men of This Community. The Time to Strike Is While the Iron Is Hot.

Since that day in the year 1840 when the steamship "Acadia" of the Cunard Line poked her way up the harbor—the first regular steamship to cross the Atlantic to the Port of Boston—there has been no day so big in the commercial development of this great city as Thursday, October 24, 1912, marked by the assurance to Boston of a Hamburg-American service from Boston to the Continent of Europe.

Well may a wise member of the Chamber of Commerce say—as such an one did say to the AMERICAN—that the people of Boston will not immediately realize all that this assurance means to this port and this city.

AND BOSTON IS GOING TO HAVE A HAMBURG-AMERICAN SERVICE IMMEDIATELY BECAUSE BOSTON WENT AFTER IT. Having learned the lesson, Boston is now going after other things.

It was a splendid and a commendable thing for the Governor of the Commonwealth, the Mayor of the city and the Chairman of the Port Directors to welcome the Director-General of the Hamburg-American line to America and to invite him—by telegraph—to come over from New York and hear and see what Boston had to offer his great organization.

But—as the AMERICAN advised—it was a thousand times a better thing to make a personal call upon Director-General Ballin.

This early call of authorized, representative, enthusiastic Bostonians did the business for Boston.

John F. Fitzgerald, Mayor of Boston; Hugh Bancroft, chairman of the Directors of the Port, and Elwyn G. Preston and Edward E. Blodgett, representing the great Chamber of Commerce, are entitled to the profoundest thanks of not only the business men, but of all the people of Greater Boston.

The citizens named, and the Chamber of Commerce, have performed more than a service to the city. What they have helped to bring about speedily will prove a great blessing to the many cities which make up the real Boston, to all of Eastern Massachusetts, to the Commonwealth as a whole, to all New England.

Let all of us determine today to take to our hearts the lesson taught by the achievement of Boston's embassy to New York.

The Director-General of the Hamburg-American line had come to America, harrassed by the dock situation in New York.

A representative of this newspaper was hurried to New York to talk Boston to the Hamburg-American line, to secure, if possible, a promise that Mr. Ballin would come over and visit with us.

The director-general said that he would come to Boston if he could find time, whereupon the AMERICAN urged a hurried visit to New York by a representative group of our citizens.

Mayor Fitzgerald, Chairman Bancroft of the Port Directors and Messrs. Preston and Blodgett left the city immediately.

They went—these Boston Boomers—to bring home a pledge that Mr. Ballin and his associates would come and see us.

THEY CAME BACK WITH THE ASSURANCE THAT EARLY NEXT MAY THE HAMBURG-AMERICAN LINE WILL INAUGURATE A FIRST-CLASS SERVICE FROM BOSTON TO THE CONTINENT OF EUROPE.

They promised, on the part of Boston—having the authority to promise—a great double-deck passenger pier on the Commonwealth docks at South Boston. Chairman Bancroft of the Port Directors promised further—and we have all got to fall in behind him in this promise—to seek authority at once to spend a large part of his $9,000,000 appropriation in the construction of a dry dock capable of containing the largest ships afloat.

Albert Ballin of Hamburg, Director-General of the Hamburg-American line, will come to Boston next Wednesday with all the members of his Board of Directors. BOSTON WILL DO MORE THAN MERELY WELCOME THEM.

Our distinguished visitors should have a reception in keeping with the importance of their visit. This visit of these Hamburg-American officials will mark the dawn of the greatest development in the history of the Port of Boston.

The most significant thing said by Director-General Ballin in New York, to the four ambassadors from Boston, was that other lines will be following the Hamburg-American to this port.

The director-general and the representatives of Boston had been discussing facilities at the pier, and particularly the possibility of a long lease of the property.

"OTHERS WILL FOLLOW US TO BOSTON," Mr. Ballin said. "There is no doubt about that. We do not want to be crowded out at some future time."

Mr. Ballin is quite right. THE CITY THAT DOES THINGS, THE CITY THAT STRIKES AT THE PSYCHOLOGICAL MOMENT, as Boston struck this time through Fitzgerald and Bancroft and Preston and Blodgett, IS BOUND TO ATTRACT THE ATTENTION OF THE WORLD.

Boston has the situation, set upon a harbor deep, capacious, secure, and at all seasons of the year unobstructed. Passengers from Europe landed in Boston can reach New York five hours earlier than they can be delivered there by boat. Similarly, the Boston service will clip ten hours from the present time to Chicago.

The great achievement of the present week—always to be remembered in the history of our port development—is a sign to New York, to Chicago, to San Francisco, to the whole world, that Boston is alive and awake; that, if there is an OLD Boston, beloved of the nation, SO TOO THERE IS A NEW BOSTON, which commands, and will have, the respect of the great world of commerce.

And from now on, let this spirit permeate and quicken our community. Far from resting quietly, now that we are promised the Hamburg-American service, let this promise inspire Boston to push out for other big things.

THE AMERICAN would again remind the business men of Boston that the opening of the Panama Canal is almost upon us.

Europe has had an immense start in the South American trade so far as the Atlantic Coast is concerned. The opening of the canal will, if we are ready for it, place Boston in direct touch with the republics of the South Pacific.

LET US BE READY FOR THEM.

Once again the AMERICAN strongly urges Boston and New England to know more about the peoples and the history of Ecuador, Bolivia, Peru and Chile. Let us not expect the South Americans to know our language. Let the New Englander be celebrated for his fluency in Spanish.

THE AMERICAN suggested, the other day, a popular New England excursion, or a series of excursions, to the Pacific Coast of South America. We renew this suggestion today. SUCH AN ENTERPRISE COULD BEST BE HANDLED UNDER THE DIRECTION OF OUR ENERGETIC CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

Two suggestions Director-General Ballin makes to Boston. Let us be on the alert for these suggestions.

Mr. Ballin asked about our hotels.

Boston has some first-class hotels. One or two Boston hotels are the equal of the best in the land.

Our German visitor also inquired anxiously about the accessibility of the Commonwealth docks.

Mayor Fitzgerald answered that these docks are about five minutes from the South Station by taxicab, or fifteen minutes by carriage.

In the opinion of the AMERICAN the new Hamburg-American docks should be brought nearer still to the heart of the city—to the hotel and shopping district—through an extension of the subway service, or a well-paved, well-lighted and broadened street.

These are things to be thinking about, and thinking about seriously.

Boston may well take courage.

Boston has again demonstrated that, if there is an OLD Boston, so also there is a NEW Boston.

Old Boston! Fate and our fathers made her first in American history, first in American art, first in American letters. There she still stands. There we shall keep her.

New Boston! Holding fast to all the things that are good of the old Boston, ours to MAKE THE NEW BOSTON FIRST IN AMERICAN INDUSTRY, FIRST IN AMERICAN COMMERCE.

IT CAN BE DONE! IT WILL BE DONE!

The Human Brain Beats the Coal Mine

Copyright, 1912, by American-Journal-Editorial

For six million years, during the carboniferous period, the tree ferns dropped their pollen dust to earth, forming coal beds, which soon took our diners and incidentally make J. Pierpont Morgan so prosperous.

A good deal of useless anxiety has been devoted to the question: What will the human race do when the coal gives out? Shall we freeze, or begin planting huge forests of wood, or what?

In the first place, coal will not give out for a long, long time. In the second place, its disappearance will not make the slightest difference, for in a few cubic inches of the human brain nature has stored up treasures greater than all those hidden in the depths of the earth. The creation of the human brain took more years than the creation of the coal fields, but the brain's resources are inexhaustible.

A German workman now comes along who has discovered a chemical substitute for coal, better than coal in many ways, and before this German shall have been dead many years some other will find a further substitute far better and cheaper than his.

There is endless heat power in the action of the tides, in the rush of Niagara, in the winds, and in endless chemical combinations. Heat is motion, and the Universe is motion. Men will soon cease lighting tiny bonfires to obtain crude heat in a crude way. Electricity or the sun's own rays, concentrated for heating purposes, will do the work without any digging in mines by men or delving in ashes and cinders by women.

The story of antiquity, more or less fictitious, of the burning of a first with the aid of glass and the numbers will be matter-of-fact really long before the coal shall have been exhausted.

By MABEL BARCLAY URY

AM a very busy mother with four active, their countless problems, and yet children and have very little spare time. You tell me that you haven't time to write the money you need. Are you quite sure? Have you really done your best? Have you asked yourself if you are putting your money in the right place? The effort you make to get your money ready for school, college, or business?

You can earn money if you desire to. Just try. There is no doubt about that. I must repeat what I have so often written here: No matter where you are, no matter what situation you have, no matter under what conditions you live, there is some money-making work you can do right where you are now.

You do not need to move to another place to find opportunity. Opportunity exists everywhere—even where we sometimes think nothing can exist. Pastures that are far away always look greener to foolish sheep. Get out of your present environment, your present surroundings, the chances to secure your need.

Mrs. Mackay saw that her neighbor made four eggs and a fresh-killed chicken. The one who sees a need is always the one to supply it. She saw. She obeyed the command of the Lord: "Be content with the necessities of the household." She saw the needs of the poultry-raisers who wished to sell their eggs and chickens. She came between the poultry-raisers and the poultry-buyers and now she is making money at home.

This is the way she tells us about it. How are you making money in your home? Now for your letter: Eggs and Poultry. Last Winter she used some 500 me to earn a little money at home, but just how I did not know, as I am a very busy mother, with four children, and have very little spare time. While she was at it, a friend suggested that I sell fresh eggs, the fresh-killed chickens and fowls—things very hard to obtain at the stores, she gave me the address of a farmer in New Hampshire. I wrote to him and he said he would be very glad to supply me with eggs. He also furnished the egg cases and paid the freight bill. I furnished the paper egg boxes and I receive as a commission half the difference in the price at wholesale in his home town and the retail price here.

In this way I have earned quite a little sum. Most of my customers are my friends who come to my home to buy. What I have to send out my boys deliver. The biggest cost me nothing, as the customers almost always return them and help me to get more.

Fried Clothing.
A friend of mine is a little New England town. She has all of her time occupied as a clothes dyer. She does every piece separately and the cost is very small. Now, as every one knows, the prices are very high if one has a regular company or professional dyer do their work. The women always has fun by following directions exactly. She dyed a faded blue dress to a beautiful dark blue at $1. returned after it had been nicely pressed, to its owner.

Many people would be glad to get work of this kind done at a reasonable price.

Sews Meter Bands.
There is a place on Commercial street in this city where they make button bands for new meters and come are given to women to take home and sew the seams together.

The seams are first glued together by hand and get two cents each, and in that way one can make quite a little bit, as the seams are only about four inches in length, there being four seams to each band.

This would be especially good for ladies who could not get around, but still had the use of their hands. I hope this will benefit somebody. MRS. BORTFORD.
